

We recognise our research team
by the tops of their heads!

DESPATCH – OR DESTROY. Here the decision is made – this paper either reaches the East Lancs standard – or it is scrap. This is one of the ways we at East Lancs use our research facilities. But the story starts much earlier. We have two kinds of research: creative and continuous. The first is geared to developing new and better papers – the second to ensuring that those papers, in their finished form, meet our very exacting standards of quality. This is the only way to provide today's printing and packaging industries with the products they demand – the East Lancs way.

An outstanding example of this policy of advanced research is FINEPRINT, a versatile all-purpose printing paper which is rapidly establishing itself as a brand leader in its field. FINEPRINT is currently in use with a wide range of printing processes, and giving excellent results with them all.
